Aunty's Little Girls

The greatest joy in Chizoba's life stemmed from the pure innocence and beauty of her two nieces Nneka and Amiya. According to Chizoba, the greatest feeling was knowing that two young and vulnerable girls were looking up to her for guidance. knowing that she had to set an example for her nieces to follow, humbled her and encouraged her to lead an exemplary life.

The birth of her niece Nneka taught Chizoba the importance of compassion, selflessness, and patience at a young age. Nneka's birth was a blessing in Chizoba's life because she felt as if she finally had a purpose to live for. As Chizoba got older she realized that Nneka motivated her to strive for the best, unbeknown to her little niece. Similarly, the birth of her second niece Amiya taught her the same values, however, since Chizoba was older at the time of her birth, the lessons impacted her life on a greater scale.

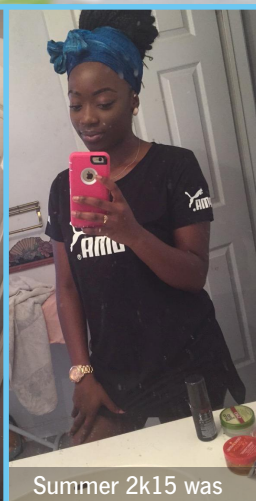

Chizoba truly considered the births of her nieces to be a blessing in disguise. they have helped to mold Chizoba into a great friend, sister, and future mother.

C for Chizoba

The self conscious yet boisterous young girl who entered grade nine determined to be liked by everyone, matured into a confident young woman by the end of grade 12. This change in character, however, was due to many trials and tribulations that Chizoba was able to overcome with the help of her family and friends.

In grade nine, Chizoba had trouble finding herself because she was often compared to her sisters Chika and Chioma. She struggled finding her interests in school, including extra curricular activities, and course electives.

She always resorted to partaking in the same activities that her sisters did, and never ventured out of her comfort zone. Her electives reflected those her sisters took.

Chizoba played on STA's junior basketball team only because Chioma was on it. Chizoba took Business class in grade 9 only because Chika did. Chizoba did not have the confidence to explore outside of her comfort zone but today, she stands as a strong and vocal woman.

Chizoba is now able to stand by her decisions with enough confidence to not back down, a trait that Chizoba never believed that she could embody. Today, she explores her interests and is proud to have found an undying passion in her culture. Most importantly, Chizoba is proud to have gone through the major milestones of a grade 12 knowing that she made her life decisions on her own. These decisions include choosing which courses to take, which undergraduate degree to enter, and which university to go to. Chizoba is proud to look back and see how far she has come. She loves the progress that she has done to become the woman that she is today and is looking forward to the years of maturing ahead.
